NATIONAL BALL GROUNDS, BOS TON, Mess., April 21.-Hanlon's aggreration joined with Buck's "Braves" in ming the National League season a he South End grounds to-day. In the gathering were members of the Legislature and perennial baseball fans, but there was an absence of Democratic politicians, the usual standbys of the game, as the State convention of the party was most to their liking to-day The day was cold and raw, but there was a bright sun. The crowd was disappointing.

First Inning.

Strang out at first. Sheckard walked and stole second. Lumley retired. Delehanty to Tenney, and Sheckard came in on Dobbs's hit, which Batty couldn't told. Babb filed to Cooley. ONE RUN. and the defendant's counsel, Mr. Lynch, cross-examined
"You are actuated by a spirit of revenge, are you not?" asked Mr. Lynch, "Yes," replied the witness faintly,
Q. You have secured a verdict of $75,000 against the defendant in a breach of promise suit, and you believe that you would have a better opportunity to collect the money if the prisoner is sent to prison? A. Yes.
"Did you and he not devise together a means to secure a formal introduction?" asked Mr. Lynch.
"I did not devise anything," replied the young woman scornfully.
"Bute-you and he consulted together about securing a proper introduction?"
"Yes."
This ended Miss Anderson's testimony

This ended Miss Anderson's testimony and Mr. J. B. Van Every was called to the stand. He said he had never and abeel before in his life and that he had not written the letter nor authorized any one to write it. Robert Goelet Testifies. Robert Goelet was called to the stand. After the usual preliminary questions, he was asked:

"Is there any member of your family named J. Ogden Goelet?"

Sunday as he requested, and that she thanked him for the box of roses.

Asked Her to Be His Wife.

"What did he say to you about marriage" asked Mr. Lord.
"He asked me to become his wife Monday night and I consented. On Wednesday night he gave me a check for $100, 100. I indorsed it and gave it back to him, saying I thought it would be safer to him his hands. He told me he had started a little side bank account in the Astor Mational Bank. This $100,000 check was drawn on that bank.

Q: Did he give you a ring? A. Yes, on Wednesday, Nov. 4, at my home. He said, "This is a family helrloom; it will be your engagement ring."

Miss Anderson then exhibited a ring set with three big diamonds, holding out her hand for the inspection of the jury.

Miss Anderson, and the court resumed Mr. Lynch's asmociate. Mr. Baker, moved for the dismissal of the indictment on several techinal srounds, asserting that no criminal intent had been proven and that the motive the prosecution had advanced in its testimony was not alleged in the indictment.

Recorder Goff overruled the motion, and thereupon Mr. Lynch began his argument for his client, estacking the indictment and the District-Attorney's case upon legal grounds.

The concluding his summing up Mr. Lynch began his outraged feelings. There is a haio around the narriage as there were a number of reporters outside. Then he left the house.

Miss Anderson said the next time she saw him was in Canada.

"He told me then, after his arrest,"

Mr. Rand then closed for the prosecution and the Court began his charge.

ended his life.
"Big Jim" Kennedy was a New Yorker. He was born in the old Eighth Ward, and as a young man was a newspaper reporter. He began on the Times, and stayed with that paper until he had risen to the position of sport-ing editor. His interest in his work led him to see the benefits to be derived from promoting sports for public pat ronage, and about ten years ago he re signed, to enter that field as a bustness. It was he who first made use of Madison Square Garden as the scene for prize-fights and walking and bicycle

In his time he had managed the former champion light-weight fighter, Frank Erne, and also had Jimmy Michael, the rider, under his direction. New York was not alone the scene of his activities. Whenever the opportunity offered he carried his business to other big cities, but latterly had divided his attention between here and San Francisco, where he held interests in the Yosemite Athletic Club, before
